Online games multiplayer free no

If I'm going to be titled the fag again by someone I don't even know... Well, I don't have a worthy threat. What can you do? Online multiplayer game is terrific when enjoying with friends. When your friends are not online, when you're up all night because of insomnia and you want to play Quake Live or Left 4 Dead or anything on Xbox Live at 4AM when you have to play with a batch of strangers, life can really start to suck. Prepare to be randomly abused for no real reason. Prepare to hear profanity spewed with awkward, teenage voices. Even if you're not using VOIP, be prepared to see hastily recruited, or worse, macro recorded images hurried at you as fast as immature fingers can produce them. Something about perceived anonymity brings out the worst in some people. I don't want pigeon teens since I've met some very nice 12-year-old boys, but they seem to be the worst of the lot, at least according to my admittedly unscientific survey. It is to count how often voices---Suring me a very, very mischievous word---tisch when they cast a curse. I don't excuse almost everyone who plays online through matchmakers like GameSpy Arcade, Steam, embedded server browsers or whatever. I made some good friends online through random matches. But I'm on the verge of quitting playing online with strangers altogether soon because I'm sick of abuse, which quickly cancels out the fun. As quickly as losers are banned, they open new accounts and join backups. As often as ESRB rates M games, kids get their hands on them anyway. Why do they feel the urge to sling mud at everyone they meet online? Is it just bad nature? Bad parenting? Social failure of some kind? The worst of them reacts to everything with a composed word that starts with M, has an F in it and ends in the ER- even if you try to ponder with them. You can't get around ruining with four-year-olds and it's about mentality debilitation that ruins matches for those of us who are acting our age.
